LARGEST AEROPLANE IN WORLD WRECKED IN ITALY

The great Caproni flying boat, Sesta Calende, designed and constructed by Signor Caproni, the great Italian aviation expert, which was wrecked by a storm in Italy a few days ago, Reports from Rome say the great plane will be rebuilt immediately and will soon attempt a transatiantic flight carrying 100 passengers. The Sesta Calende is the greatest heavier-than-air machine in the world, having a lifting capacity of 52,000 pounds. The giant flying boat has three sets of triplanes, spanning 100 feet and a boas sixty-six feet long. The pullman cabin has ample accommodation for 100 passengers with baggage. The plane is thirty-two feet high and its estimated speed, with a full cargo, is nine ty miles any bour! . Eight 300-400 horse-bower engines furnish the mutive power.

The three-hours service was hold n commemoration of the hours the davior hung an the cross and the seven sermosa delivered by local pas tors were on the seven last words of Christ

The services opened with a prayer b. Dr. J. D. Darling, pastor of Wesles M. E. church, and was followed by a gong by the congregation.

"Christ in the Temple" was the subject of the Arat address by Re-F. E. Hawes, pastor of Ftie Memorial Baptist church. Rev. D. H. Moritz took for the subject of his address "Christ at the Passover" and this ialk was followed by a duet by Mrs. A. W. Leonhardt and Mrs. E. E. Kemmerlee

Rev. C. L. Allen, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, apoke on Christ's Wonderful Words of Life' and was tollowed by a talk on Christ in the Garden" by Rev. C. R Allenbaugh, pastor of St. Paul's Englah Lutheran church.

O H. Carrier, general secretary of the Y M C. A., gave an address on "Chilst Heirayed by a Comrade," after which Rev. J. C. Gerlach, pass for of the Prospect Street M E church, spoke on "Christ before "Christ on the Cross" was the subject spoken on by Dr. O. F. Laughhaum, of the First United Brethren church and the services closed with a prayer by Dr. L. L. Strock, paster of the First Presby terian church, and a hymn by the congregation. The song service was led by Ray Iteldenbaugh

"Christ in the Temple." Rev. F E Hawes, pastor of the Fite Memorial Baptist church, said: "When Jesus entered Jerusalem in triumpn, surrounded by the shouting multitudes. He went into the temple and looked around about on all things and saw the terrible desecration of the temple, then He retired to Bethany for the night. The following morning He returned to Jerusaiem and cleaned the temple, driving out the traffickers and overthrowing the tables of the money changers. Concerning this cleansing of the temple we notice that it was-

"i .-- An act of holy indigation. Jesus was angry. He had a right to be angry. Piety that remains unmoved at sights that dishonor God and wrong our fellowmen is hyppocritical. The Christian who can remain attent and inactive when Christ is blasphemed and the cross dragged in the dust is a false siarm.

"2.-The cleansing of the temple was an act of divine authority. The temple was His Fathur's house. He came to do His Father's will. He acted as any loyal son should act under similar circumstances. He spoke with such supreme authority that the transgressors fied in con-

"R. It was an act of righteousness. Right is siways right. Josus. used force to expel the tramckers from the temple. There is such a thing as 'muscular christianity.' But Jesus also had an ally in the breast of every man shom He opposed When He said. 'Is it not written, my house shall be called of all nations a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves?" Conscience rose up and said, 'Amen' and the conscience of those men fought with Jesus against the guilty traffic. "Should Jesus come into his church today would be not find couditions practically the same as when he visited his temple more than nineteen hundred years ago? Would He not find the secularist there? The man who has cast his lot with the Chosen of God simply as a business investment. The men who use religion as a clouk to cover a life of

"But He would also flud the 'blind and lame' just as Jesus found them in the temple. And they are in their proper place. The Day Before Easter-A Great Day in Which to Take Advantage of These Notable and Wonderful Easter Selling Events

They Are Beautiful—These New Suits Which Were Received Just in Time for The Day Before Easter

Every Single Suit is a Wonderful Value Which cannot be duplicated anywhere in the city at Such Prices

Never before in the history of our business has an Easter Selling Event been so great as this one.

The fact that the enthusiaem of the women who visited our Ready-to-Wear Sections has been greater and greater every day, makes it very evident that this unusual Easter Sale has met with the approval of the women of this community.

Many of them have shopped at other stores and have compared the values and returned to our Second Floor to purchase their new Easter Apparel.

Due to the great buying which has been going on during the past two weeks, we have been obliged to wire for new merchandise to supply the demand of the late shoppers, as well as those who put off buying until after the Easter rush

We still have a most exceptional lot of Easter Suits at this price and they are altogether actonishing. Beautiful new French Serge Suits, with a few Tricotines, mostly all navy blue, made up in the newest styles and showing the latest trimmings.

The majority of these beautiful Suits are of very high grade Tricotine, fashioned in the new box, ripple tails and belted styles. In the new blues, tane and greys, as well as black and the new

These are matchless—any place—any where. Charmingly made from the finest Tricotine, in newest styles and trimmings, beautifully embroidered and elegantly lined. Created in all the wanted Spring colorings.

Special arrangements have been made-it is our desire to be able to make alterations on every purchase made in our Garment Section Saturday.

What Mcodemus Said, "The first to take the witness stand will be the earthly witness. Nicodemus said of Christ 'We know thou art a teacher come from God." Paul said, 'This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptances that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners of whom I am the Chief.' Stephen said, Behold, I see the beavens open and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of was." This is the testimony of his friends and lest it be considered blased, let us consider the testimony of some of his enemies. Spies Sent.

"Spies sent out by the Jews said of Him. 'Never man spake like this Pontius Pilate said, 'I find no fault in Him; I am innocent of the blood of this just person.' The centurian under whose actual direction the crucifizion took place said, 'Tru-

The Glory of Easter Music

Choral records of Easter music are played at their best on The Cheney: The ensemble of the chorus is restored in all of its majesty—the balance of parts preserved in pleasing harmony.

The ability to reproduce such difficult records with all of the quality and perfect maintenance of tonal values is distinctive of The Cheney. A most important series of acoustic inventions give to Cheney reproductions rare shading and tone coloring which constitute the real beauty of any production.

AIR MYSTERY

Search for Missing Balloonists is Extended,

SOUTHERN FORESTS ARE BEING COVERED

Possible Men May Be Wandering in Wilderness.

Investigatore Think Men May Have Escaped Culf Waters and Reached Land-Aircraft and Boats Busy.

Pensacola, Florida, March 24,.... That the balloon which has been missing from the naval air station here since last Tuesday may have drifted to land and the five men init may have been killed or hadly injured and are now wandering about in the forests along the Calhoun or Day county coast, was the theory advanced by Lieutenant Reed. instructor to meteorology at the station, today. This conclusion if reached by a study of weather conditions, Lieutenant Reed plotted the course of the balloonists and does not understand how the hag could have some to sea in the teeth of fresh southerly white which were proveiling, Thursday, along the Florlda coast,

Further opinion is advanced that the ballconists, finding that the bag was lusing its bouyancy, cut away the hanker as it touched the surface of the water and took refuge in the rigging. This would cause the balloon to again macend, the weather tudenta ameri, and might enable the crew to reach the land.

With these theories in mind, the renancola station, early this morning, despatched a dietathia with autfir more than a day over the fornula, under inelantiche to search the insiniand and intend centers, and cially the forests, with as much care as was the sea searched yester-

LONESOMENESS had settled upon her like a alck spell. The nearest cabin was a mile away, and that was sacout, list father and the other fish folks of Capress Island were bivoucked upon distant Stuart Island in shacks and tents, waiting for the annual begins of calmon from the wide Pacific into the bays and passes of Paget

She wanted to accompany her father, but he had each no, that he wanted no girl of his me fish camp. Meny times she wished that the hall disobered, americal berself and gone with him. A score of times she had dissuaded lam from tash and despirate enterprise, could do it again, if she were by his side. But he was there on Stunct, she on Cypress. Horrid pictores limed themselves upon her fancy of grim per on walls, of unrelenting locks and durable from bars.

And the danger to her father, Big Tim, lay not in the fact that his sout honsed aught of real guit or annual terparade, but rather to his ions stiff needed slubborniers touching what he regarded to be his rights. A man-made has of poles might declare a thing to be wrong, but Big Tim thought otherwise; he would fing himself sayingth upon the mesh of restriction put about him. as a bull seal will batter out its own brains against the pilings of the fish trap that has

Big Tim was honest. He would not, for example, pirate a fish trap, as many another fighterings did, and accounted the deed a justifiable reprisal upon the glutton cannery companies. Neither would Hig Tim smuggle, though other islanders did, maintaining that the law had no more right to run an imaginary line between the Canadian and American San Juans than it did to erect a burrier to fence the free winds.

Piracy, smuggling, observance of the fish taxes, Big Tim understood; but he could not, would not, understand how the law could rob him of the fruit of honest labor, a fact which would weigh not at all in his favor, as bin dunghter, Little Tim, well knew, should the government host put into Stuart and the heavy hand of a gold braider lay itself upen his shoulder.

Four years before, the year of the last anchers migration-the sockers runs quadrenpially-Big Tim and a Lumi Indian, called Tipso, had put holdly out to sea in their dorles, and had killed many valuable sea offer. Tipso knew the secret. A sea otter will swim itself to exhaustion, rest itschin upon a kelp stem in the midst of a mass of seawerd, sleep and float.

Many valuable sea ofter furs Tim and Tipeo brought in, scraped, salted and stored in the loft of Tipso's cabin. Then a fisherman brought to Stuart the news of the government edict: No man might take a see otter for twenty years; all skins when found would be couliscated; the passession of an otter skin was prima fecie evidence

In the remote island of the San Juans are no telephones or newspapers. At once Big. Tim and Tipeo countegly cached their furs in a cave near Spindle Rock, taking no basard that the fisherman had transmitted the news of the edict, either carbled or in part. Big Tim, resentful, reckiess, began meditating desperate plans to beat the law and translate the skins into money. Overnight Little Tim, aged then eighteen, exchanged the dependent place of daughter for the watchful responsibilities of anxious mother to her own giant of a father, From one preposterous plan after another she disguaded him; by every expedient that affection and a quick wit can invent she tided him safely over his paroyxsus of savage

YEAR had passed, a second, a third. A Big Tim, all but forgetting the cache of sea otter, plied net and dory of Stuart sland, taking his share of the succeeding runs of spring and silver salmon, of humpback and blackmouth. Then came Klem Hunting, a thick-necked young man who fished some, worked trap some, tended scow some, but mainly loafed the shores and passes in his yawl, who blew upon the embers of Big Tim's resentment with a proposition to load the skins aboard the yawl and transport them for sale to some Causdian port.

Big Tim warmed to the proposition, forgot his couning, ignored the warning of Tipso and showed Kiem the hiding place of the fact.

Without a doubt Klein Hunting would have succeeded in his plan but for one circomstance. There was something that Big. Tim loved better than gain, and that something was his daughter, Little Tim. Klem Hunting, coming often to the cabin, began to look with bold and desiring gaze upon the pretty face and round, telm figure of Little Tim. Big Tim's instincts were as precient as those of a bear in a jungle. As for himself, Big Tim would have trafficked with the devil, but no man might look upon his Little Tim save with honest gaze, and the regard of Klem Hunting was furtise, evasive, base.

"Lookee, Klem." said Big Tim bluntly, pointing to the thirty-thirty rifle hauging from the deer horns upon the wall, "that for deal, she's all off. And lookee, if ever I make out your yawl here-to in the bay before my cabin again I'll slide them sights to the distance and open on you! Cumtus. Klem."

Klem's suggestion to lead the fure and take them to Canada, Little Tim feared, had around her father's sleeping determination to peddle the relia semehow and beat the law. That was had enough when he had settled down to the fishing and had given up his fantastic schemes; but now this other had to come on, the dread of bloodshed and violence, for despite Hig Tim's warning the leacheember's tawl came to anchor in the bay more than once, and several times at night she had heard some prowher circling the coun.

PHIE days wiren't so terrible. She had I the housework, sening, a little patch of garden, and she owned also a thirty rifle of her own. But the nights-

Pitfful were the expedients to which she had recourse in order to while away the yet long evenings of the early speing. She read and rerend her meager store of books. She were ledien baskets, danced with herself choos the littless flows, let denty entry bet or high emprise, only to be dropped back into the cabin's narrow confines when a twig erackled in the trail.

Big Tim lifted him in his arms and bore him into the cabin

A two-weeks old copy of the paper, pullished upon a distant island of the group, had been tossed off to her with some magazines from the passing packet boat. She devoured the magnaines, then read the paper, dwelling with envious interest upon the acenunts of social activities which were beginning to take place at thist Sound and beer Harbor among the early variationists. There a tea had been given by this one, a dance by that one and such a one was at home every Friday.

She laid the paper in her lap. How she would like to be "at home," Her imagination, quickened by living much in the land of make believe, depicted her very own self. dressed in a pacity, fluffy goven, flitting about, emiling welcome to the arriving

The wind was beginning to whirl wildly down the steep canyon leading to the sheltered hay below the cabin. With the turn of the tide the gale would stiffen still more It was going to be a squailigh night-and dark. She hoped that her father and, the other fishermen were safely in from the banks, soug beneath the shelter of cedar shake roof or that tent top.

She glanced at the tide calcadar banging upon the wall and thence to the ship's clock ticking above the mantel. Thursday! Supposing Thursday were her day or evening

Eight bells-8 o'clock. My, she must harry; the guests would be arriving.

In a tremendous flurry of excitement ever being so tardy and remiss she harried into, the tiny bedroom, donned her best gown, changed shoes and stockings, redde her bair with a few dexterous twists and thrusts of the hairpins.

Hurrying back into the living room she lighted the extra kerosene lamp and placed two lighted candles on the table near the front window.

She scaled betself, folded her bandsedemurch-waited. She sprang to her feet. her lively imagination vividly materializing the arriving guests. To one after another she nedded graciously, bent her head to listen to the banter of the hand-ome young man whom fancy had conjured to her side,

There came a tearing gust of wind that clattered the loose codar shakes above her head. Ah, yes, she was at home. In truth and in fact at home, alone, in a remote cabin on Cypress island.

Hot tears sprang to her eyes. She walked to the front window, cupped her palms about her eyes and stared out into the darkness. Away below, by the point of the rocky promontory, she caught a momentary flash of white as the seas dashed themselves into phosphorescence upon the ragged beach.

HARK! Somebody was coming up the trail—something, somebody. She heard a tock, loosened from the trail, go tumbling down the steep declivity. There was a flash of light, #s from a lontern or a pocket search. Some one was coming.

Her eyes widened with apprehension as she steed starms at the latch of the door. A knock sounded. With unsteady feet she crossed the floor and opened the door.

Standing before her was a young man. dressed in grand "town clothes," but much bedraggled, the water dripping from the limp brim of a dejected appearing hat. The Rilly Mason," he said, his features

On went the little sloop, staggering under the blows of the smashing seas. Now and then, under the girl's orders, Mason pumped with the hand pump to rid the craft of all logging weight.

AS THE dim outline of Spieden Island dropped astern, Little Tim took a Coston signal candle from the locker, struck a wind-proof fusee match and ignited the wick. A blinding yellow flame burst from the candle's end, its lurid light throwing itself far into the dark stretches about.

Ahead, just beating into the opening of Reed's Harbor of Stuart Island, showed a low-hung craft of some sort, with a square sail. The little ship was careening middly, but held stubbornly to its course.

''Blow—wind—blow!'' Little Tim's bands tensed to whiteness about the tiller. As if to add the urging impetus of the frall weight of her body to the boat's onward rush, she began jerking her body back and forth until the bost drove

When The Oiless Engine Sticks

Reed The Vital Warnings Of Oil Level And Pressure Indicators

ITH AN ENGINE THAT HAS RUN DRY, the first thing to do is to supply oil to its pistons, while it is cooling down. All sparkplugs should therefore be removed and a liberal supply squirted plugs should therefore he removed and a interal supply squiried into each cylinder. After a few minutes, another attempt on he made at hand cranking and, if this is successful, it may be that no serious tamage has been done. If, however, the engine is still "stuck," further pooling of the parts and applications of oil through the plug holes may free incling of the parts and applications of oil through the plug holes may free the parts that have slezed. Turning by hand a jacked-up rear wheel, with ligh gear engaged, gives more engine starting leverage than the hand-rank and can be made to tend to turn the engine in either direction, so that rocking the wheel may loosen up the engine, but if such expedients fall, it means a tow to a garage. It, fortunately, the engine loosens up mily, the next thing is to locate the trouble. After ascertaining that there is plenty of oil, it is beceesary to find out why it did not flow properly. Clean the strainer, see that the pump is mechanically all right and that its valves are not stuck, look for broken, leaky, clouded or disconnected oil tubes. Fill the pump with oil and see if it then will work, if the transic cannot be ascertained and removed do not try to run the car further with this exception: If the jubricating system is of the circulating splash type, by adding oil in excess of the usual quantity, the level can be raised above the splash basins and the car carefully driven (probably in a very smoky manner) to the nearest repair shop, even though the pump still falls to

G. W. K. writes: The engine of my 1915 car "hits" on all four cylinders, when idling, but when I throw it into high, it misses and jerks and will not pull satisfactorily on open throttle until I allow it to race momentarily. After renewing piston-rings and spark-plugs this trouble temporarily disappeared, but has now returned. I have just put on a new carburetor. What makes it perform in this way?

Answer: When an engine misses upon the throttle being opened and racing it causes it to run regularly, the trouble usually is that the intake system has become loaded with ilquid gasoline which, when the throttle is opened, rushes into the cylinders, producing temporarily an everich mixture that fouls the plugs for the time being. Racing frees the intake system of the excess fuel and causes a more nearly normal mixture to be supplied. This trouble is very common on engines that have no special means of heafting the intake, especially with the present low grade gasoline. Running the water as hot as practicable and the use of some form of exhaust heated manifold tend to overcome this manifold leading.

OVERNETATED GENERATOR

OVERNEATED GENERATOR COMMUTATOR

J. H. M. writes: The generator my motorcycle has twice melted on my motorcytis has twice minera-out the solder that holds the arma-fure coils into the commutator sec-tions. Is this because it is set for too high a voltage or because of defective brushes?

Answer: Quite likely this is caused by frictional heat developed at the commutator, due to too much brush-holder spring tension, the use of inferior brushes or to the commutator surface being rough and out of true. If the whole armature gets hor enough to smoke and smell strongly, it may be that there is a short-ciprout in it, either among the colls or due to the mice segment insulations the source of noise better than you being bridged. You might have the infiniture given the "busser test" to estile this question. The charging rate of this generator should be tested with an ammeter and reduced, if It proves to be too high, as excess output may have something to do with the hot commutator, in con-junction with faulty brush action.

Shantung Award is Condemned. Former Secretary Discusses Conference Differences.

Besten, March 25 .- Robert Lansing. former secretary of state and memher of the American peace commission, will reveal in his forthcoming book on "The Peace Negotiations" how close he came to resigning from the commission because of differences with President Wilson over the Shanting decision and his belief that many of the terms of peace imposed on Germany were harsh and humili-

President Wilson, according to Mr. Lansing's belof, at one time during the peace conference purposed to negotiate a preliminary treaty which would start the leakue of nationa functioning without, laying the document before the United States senate, and evidently was much perturbed when his secretary of state told nim that the only way to change the status from war to peace was by a ratified treaty or a joint resolution of

A prefound conviction that imme diate peace was the primary need of the world, Mr. Lansing implies, was all that kept him from resigning from the peace commission because of fundamental disagreements with the president on principles. The former secretary discloses that in 1916, shortif before a meeting in Washington of the League to Enforce Peace, at which the president was to speak, Mr. Lansing wrote to Mr. Wilson, oblecting to the use of force to settle sternational disputes. In this letter as pointed to the menace to the Montoe doctrine contained in such a plan.

It is in relation to Shantung Mr. lansing discloses the sharpest differtaces between himself and President Wilson. Mr. Lausing gives as his opinion that blackmail and bluk by Japan impelled the president to agree to surrender to thet country such rights in Shantung as before the war were held by Germany and automatically annulled when China declared bostilities. In his opinion only secret diplomacy made it possible for Japan to threaten to leave the peace confertace unless its demands were granted.

Says Others Shared View. That other members of the Amerion commission shared his view that the Shantung decision as rendered by the council of four was a flagrant rong and were prevented from resigning only by the critical conditions in the world situation, is clearly impiled by Mr. Lansing. He describes the indignation felt by himself and by Henry White and General Tasker H.

It was impossible, in Mr. Lansing's trinion, to make the league of nations' covenant the greatest interna-Bazal compact ever written, as was itiended, in the 11 days given to its traiting. This is established by the document itself, he says, which provides for an oligarchy of the great powers and a continuance of the polky of the balance of power.

Secretary Lensing finds the mandate system of administering conquered territories a selfish devise. benefiting material interests of the wandate-holding powers under cover of apparent altruiom.

Relating the difficulties and embermasments to which three of the American commissioners were subected by failure of the president to bold a single conference with the American commission on the league of cations from its first meeting until its report was printed. Mr. Lansing With the office force of Colonel House mer more about the proceedings than the three American commission-175 Who were not present.

"The premature and unnecessary 'squeats' of "I'm going to economize this year." observed the Argentine press on the Fordney measure the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, are interesting as an example of the difference bor's ox atrays into our garden and when it is our ox that strays into his. I remumber, for instance, that some years age Argentina increased the duty on shoe-wear by over 100 per cent. time probably ninety per cent, of all shoes imported into Argentina. Some New England trade organization was foolish enough to attempt to interest the government of the United States in objecting to this measure, and although the government refused, of course, to interfere, the mere fact of this stiempt was pounced upon by the Argentine press to call attention to our unwarranted interference with their demestic rev-ence measures, with the usual instructions re-garding our "big stick" policy, the big brother garding our "big stick" points, the purpose bullying the little one, the real hidden purpose of the Mouros doctrine and so one, ad nauscam.

It is a fact protty well organized in this country that official Argentina is made up of level-headed men well informed as to the rights woman over her ability to throw a stone and revenue affairs. So far as is known there has regard it as a purely demestic question.

But when it comes to the sentiment of the press, an entirely different attitude is displayed. and one would imagine, after reading some of advice of his fellow-men in response to the editorials of the Latin American newspapers, questions of an interviewer. One bit of advice that they had been prepared in the Democrat pertained to the sleep required by the human headquarters of this country. The reason for this is not hard to find. Real Contribution to Political Literature of Country.

Henry Morgenthau Say He Has His Own Opinion of Former President Wilson and Will Later Express It in Book.

New York, March 25,-- "Please; excuse me from commenting," said Bainbridge Colby, former pecretary of state, when asked at his home here, today, for an expression of opinion on Robert Lansing's hook on the Paris neace negotiations. Mr. Colby, who succeeded Lan-zing as secretary of state and who was one of President Wilson's friends, when asked if he desired to ; say something in behalf of ex-President Wilson with respect to the Lansing revelations.

"I should like very much to accommodate you," said Mr. Colby, "but I'm sure you will appreciate that I am restrained by every consideration from commenting upon a aubject of this nature."

"It is a remarkable contribution to political 'literature," commented Representative James R. Mann, of Hilpola, veteran Republican leader in the house. "I have had an opportunity to read more than the printed extracts appearing in the newspapers," he concluded, "but it demonstrates clearly what the country has long known-that President. Wilson would take no advice and brook no intereference"

"This is a family row and I do not care to comment upon it," said Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey. "I have my own opinion of Mr. Wilson and I will give it in my book, which I am now writing."

Some of Mr. Wilson's former associates expressed doubt, today, that he would make any formal ausmer to Mr. Lausing's charge that he virtually ignored and snubbed his co-negotiators at the treaty meeting at Paris. Such a course would be undignified for a former president and would figure they said.

By others, it was believed that some of the few men who still have the confidence of this former presidept will take up the burden of defense, either with or without his nermission. It also was successed that Mr. Wilson might content blueself by merely making public at some future date the minutes of the negotiations at Paris and allow these to salaries of supreme, appellate and stand as his answer to his former secretary of state.

EXPLAINS CASE TO ATTORNEY GENERAL

Debs Makes No Plea for Clemency-Three Years in Prison Makes Change.

Washington, March 25.-Eugene V. Debs is returning, today, to his cell in the federal prison at Atlanta, after Lis brief taste of freedom-the first he has enjoyed since his conviction under the espionage act, three years ago. While Attorney General Daugherty was cautious, today, about giving any indication as to the results of the noted prisoner's unprecedented trip to Washington, alone and unguarded, it can be said authoritatively that Debs has immeasureably increased his chances for executive clemency by his two-hour talk with Attorney General Daugherty.

It is understood that Debs made no appeal for clemency. With the same quiet dignity which he maiutained during his many trials and which has marked his conduct in prison, the prisoner came to Washington at the attorney general's invitation, replied to questions in a quiet and forceful manner and presentation of his views and then made his any as quietly and unostentatiously as he came, back to the train that returned him to the prison that has been his home for three years. He made no plea, it is understood, but merely stated his case and withdrew, leaving his fate in the hands of those now in command of official Washington.

One result of his visit, however, was apparent today. Attorney General Baugherty will speed up the lahor of going over the records in the case. The nie of papers in the Debs case is so balky that ordinarily it would require several weeks to plow through them. Today, it is believed that the attorney general will be able to communicate his recommendations to the White House within a few days. There is good cause to believe that these recommendations will not be unfavorable. Some of the most optimistic of Deba' friends are frankly hopeful for a full presidential par- honesty is the best policy. don, which will restore the noted Socialist to freedom immediately. By others, however, it is felt that Daugherty's recommendation is far more likely to be for a commutation of sentence in the very near future. Debs still has seven years to serve under his original ten-year sentence. Marked Impression.
